

COVID-19 Update: A Message to Our Valued Customers and Business Partners

Many local, state, and national governments are issuing shelter-in-place or stay-at-home orders for all non-essential business. As a provider of essential products and services as defined under federal guidance, Rotex plays a vital role in helping to maintain the continuity of services and functions that industries depend on during this pandemic. Therefore, we are continuing our manufacturing operations to help ensure that our products are available to meet the needs of the critical and essential infrastructure, and will do so consistent with state and local orders or other requirements.

The health and well-being of our associates remain a top priority. We are taking the recommended precautions issued by the U.S. Centers for Disease Control (CDC) for employers and businesses and have adapted our policies and practices to their guidance.

For more, please take a moment to read a very important message from our President, Lawrence Rentz.
